Malenkov Takes Over as New Soviet Boss; Differ on Outcome of Change for Vishinsky

Move Seen As Setback In Revenge

New UN Delegate Keeps Silent on Malenkov's Promotion to Top Job as Red Premier

United Nations, March 7 (AP)—UN delegates differed today whether the shift of Andrei Y. Vishinsky from Soviet foreign minister to chief Russian UN delegate was a demotion or presaged a new and tougher Soviet line in the world organization.

The change was announced by the Kremlin yesterday as Vishinsky sailed for home. Associates said the tough-talking Moscow lawyer received no advance word of the shift that put Deputy Premier V. M. Molotov in the top foreign minister spot. Vishinsky also was named a deputy foreign minister, a job he had held before.

Declines Comment

Vishinsky declined comment on the Russian government changes—including the selection of Georgi M. Malenkov to succeed Premier Stalin—when reporters reached him aboard the French liner Liberte, a few minutes before the ship left her New York pier.

Later, The Associated Press placed a ship-to-shore call to Vishinsky but was informed that the former foreign minister "is not taking any calls and his secretary does not wish to be disturbed."

Some European delegates familiar with the Russians said Molotov finally has his revenge on the old-time prosecutor. They said Vishinsky was being stationed here to remove him from the Moscow scene.

Never Forgave Vishinsky

Molotov—once tagged by Lenin as a top-rate filing clerk—customarily spoke disparagingly of Vishinsky as "just a lawyer." The delegates said Vishinsky, known as a protégé of L. P. Beria, head of the Soviet Political Police, helped engineer the ousting of Molotov as foreign minister on March 5, 1949, and that Molotov never forgot or forgave Vishinsky.

Vishinsky was Stalin's prosecuting purge-master in the great liquidation trials of 1936-37 and has often spoken against delegates here as though they were defendants in a Moscow courtroom.

The turn of events completely surprised delegates. Another surprising turn was the sudden departure of Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet ambassador to London, from Britain for the United States to take over the delegation until Vishinsky can return from Moscow.

Knows How to Be Ruthless

It was reported here that Gromyko had had a visa to come to the United States for about two weeks. This raised conjecture in some minds that the Russians had planned to send Gromyko earlier, or had planned to keep him in reserve for such a shake-up as took place today.

Delegates inclined to believe the Russians would take a tougher position in the UN pointed out Vishinsky knew how to carry out orders to the fullest and how to be ruthless.

They speculated the Russians had become concerned by reports that the Eisenhower administration planned a tough line in the UN, and elsewhere and were moving to meet it.

Some European delegates also conjectured that the appointments announced in Moscow

Highland Youth Is Held For Missing Draft Exam

A Highland youth was arrested by the FBI Friday afternoon on a charge that he failed to report for his physical examination as ordered by his draft board.

Michael William Welch, 21, who gave his address as Box 598, Maple avenue, Highland, was picked up at Highland by Special Agent Jack Lupton of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Kingston office, assisted by County Investigator Arthur H. Brown of the sheriff's office.

Arraigned late in the afternoon before U. S. Commissioner Martin F. Comeau under section 462 of Title 50, U. S. Code, Welch waived a hearing and was ordered held in $1,000 bail for further order of the Federal District Court. He was committed to the Ulster county jail until able to make bail. Welch said he was employed in an electrical store.

Russians Prepare Big Public Funeral for Stalin on Monday

Plans Are Announced for Great Pantheon as Tomb of All Soviet Leaders

Moscow, March 7 (AP)—The Soviet Union today readied the greatest funeral in its 37-year history for Joseph V. Stalin. The new government and the Communist party announced that his body, after rites Monday, would lie alongside Lenin's in Red Square until a great pantheon—a new temple shrine of world communism—is built to receive them and other Red "immortals."

An official announcement of the party central committee and the government Council of Ministers, now headed by Georgi M. Malenkov as Stalin's successor, said the funeral would be held at noon Monday (4 a. m. EST), but gave no details of the form the rites would take.

Nor did it say whether any part would be taken by religious leaders, who have led public prayers for Stalin since his last illness was announced Wednesday.

Millions Pass Bier

Moscow observed the second of four days deep official mourning for the fallen leader who died Thursday night of heart failure and other complications following a massive brain hemorrhage Sunday. Sorrowing Muscovites and other Russians waited through bitter cold in a 16-abreast, 10-mile-long line to pass Stalin's flower-banked, open coffin.

At least a million persons must have seen the body since it was placed on view yesterday and from the appearance of the lines still waiting, another million will. The bier rests on a high platform in the great empire-styled Hall of Columns of the House of Trade Unions, on Red Square only a few hundred yards from Lenin's red-colored, stone mausoleum.

Flock to Moscow

From over the world, top foreign Communists hurried to the Soviet capital for the last rites of the man who for 29 years, ever since the death of Lenin, received first allegiance of the Soviet Union's 200 million people and of the millions of Communists abroad.

The announcement of the funeral time said the ceremonies would end with the placing of the sarcophagus containing Stalin's embalmed body in the Lenin mausoleum. Presumably then Stalin's body will remain exposed, under glass, for public veneration as Lenin's is.

"A monumental building—a pantheon—is to be built as a memorial to their immortal glory," said the announcement. "The bodies of Lenin and Stalin as well as the remains of other outstanding leaders of the Communist party and the state buried near the Kremlin wall are to be transferred to it."

Van Fleet Won't Talk on Ike Visit

Arts, Crafts Work Will Be Displayed At 11 Local Stores

Full Week Exhibit Set for Articles Made by Students in Evening Classes

Articles representative of the work of approximately 175 students in the arts and crafts courses at the Kingston Public School System's adult evening classes will be on exhibit next week in 11 local store windows.

Work by beginners as well as advanced students is to be included in the display of articles turned out by persons in classes in sewing, woodworking, ceramics, metalcraft, machine shop practice, hooked rugs and art.

Hubert Hoderath, adult school principal, said today the exhibit is the first undertaken on such an inclusive scale by the students. He asked that particular appreciation be expressed to the various store proprietors who permitted the use of the windows.

Some Already Placed

Most of the classes represented meet two nights a week and are attended by adults, most of them employed during the daytime hours. Housewives also attend the courses.

Some of the exhibits were being set up this Friday and Saturday. All will be in place by Monday afternoon and will remain on view for the week.

The sewing classes instructed by Mrs. Catherine Ellsworth, Mrs. Mae Johnson and Mrs. Alice Kurdt will exhibit representative articles in windows at Montgomery Ward and Company, the Yardstick and the Fabric Mart, all on North Front street.

Included will be dresses, shirts, blouses, children's clothing, possibly dresses and other items.

Students in the art classes also will exhibit at North Front street stores. Students of Richard Jeffrey will exhibit at the Shults Paint Company, while those of Mrs. Margaret Wetterau will exhibit at Shapiro's Paints.

Two Woodworking Classes

The hooked rug display of the class of Mrs. Irene Shell will be on view at Leventhal's on Wall street.

The metalcraft class under Raymond Gilkey and the machine shop practice class under Michael Aronica will have their exhibits in windows of Herzog's hardware store on Wall street.

Two woodworking classes will exhibit. One, instructed by William Oskay, will use a window of the Union-Fern furniture store, and the other, instructed by Lawrence Plog, will set up its display at the J. J. Newberry Co. store on Wall street.

The ceramics class of Mrs. Louise Brokenshaw will have exhibits at Flanagan's men's shop, on Wall street and at Huston's art, craft and engineering supplies store on Broadway.

More Detail on Ammunition

General James A. Van Fleet talks with Sen. Harry Flood Byrd (D-Va.) March 6, as the retired commander of the 8th Army in Korea returned to tell the Senate Armed Services Committee more about ammunition supplies in that fighting area. Byrd said he was shocked by Van Fleet's testimony about ammunition shortages in Korea and wrote to demand that Secretary of Defense Wilson promptly punish what Byrd called "criminal inefficiency."

General Informs Press Reporters They Had Only Friend Chat

Washington, March 7 (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet spent an hour and 10 minutes with President Eisenhower today but declined to say whether they talked about his claim that ammunition has been seriously short in Korea.

The retiring former commander of the 8th Army would say only that it was a "friendly, old-time chat."

Van Fleet touched off a congressional uproar earlier in the week with testimony that there was a serious ammunition shortage during the entire 22 months he led U. S. forces in Korea.

Defense officials have disputed the shortage report and will appear before the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday to testify, along with Van Fleet.

Rushes to Car

The general, after his visit with Eisenhower, walked briskly out of the President's office to a waiting automobile, refusing to stop to answer reporters' questions.

While he posed for cameramen outside, however, they had time to ask him whether his testimony was reviewed with the President. "Gentlemen," he replied, "you know I can't talk about what went on there."

There was speculation the conference would touch on testimony the retired 8th Army commander has given to congressional committees.

However, White House Press Secretary James A. Hagerty said the visit had been scheduled since last Monday, before Van Fleet's testimony prompted two Senate committees to ask for investigations into the Korean supply situation.

Moves to Quiet Furor

Secretary of Defense Wilson sought to quiet the furor late yesterday with assurances to senators that there is enough ammunition in the Far East Command to "counter any enemy attack in Korea."

Wilson wrote Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) that there will be no delay in clearing up the ammunition situation and "we will present the facts with utmost dispatch." Byrd (Continued on Page 9, Col. 5)

Adds Bail Set at $500 On Alcohol Tax Charge

Charged with possessing and transporting non-tax paid alcohol in his motor vehicle, Lawrence Addis, 50, of Kerhonkson was released on $500 bail for further order of the federal court after his arraignment Friday afternoon before U. S. Commissioner Martin F. Comeau in Kingston.

Addis waived a hearing before Commissioner Comeau and the case will go before the U. S. District Court for the Southern District.

State police of the Ellenville station arrested Addis Friday morning after they detected alcohol leaking from his automobile and stopped to investigate. Following his arrest, Addis was turned over to Alcohol Tax Unit men for arraignment.

Succeeds Stalin

Georgi Malenkov, chief Soviet exponent of international communism, was announced March 6 by the Moscow radio as successor to the top Russian post held by the late Joseph Stalin. The announcement said that Malenkov has been appointed chairman (prime minister) of the Council of Ministers of the Soviet Union, the post that Stalin held at the time of his death.

Has Freedom on Project Since Stalin's Death; Was Busy With It Long Time

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Foreign News Analyst

Paris, March 7 (AP)—The sharp streamlining of the Soviet government under its new dictator, Georgi M. Malenkov, suggests determination on his part to push at all costs the building of the Soviet economy to the point where it will rival that of the United States and make him ready for any emergency—including war.

Malenkov likely was busy on such a project long before Stalin died. Now, with a free hand as boss, he obviously intends to quicken the pace and let nothing stand in his way.

Centralizes Authority

The new Mr. Red has telescoped the many ministries of the vast bureaucracy which is the Soviet government, slimming down its bulging sides and centralizing authority. The picture of Malenkov's revolution—and a revolution it is—becomes one of sharp centralization of authority in the hands of those he thinks he can trust most.

Young and vigorous men are taking over, pushing the older ones into the background. This is in line with the Malenkov idea. He, himself, has only just passed the 50-year mark and his reservoir of strength is in the class of Communists who grew up after the Bolshevik revolution, sealed off from the rest of the world and wholly indoctrinated in the Stalinist dogma.

First, Malenkov moved cautions.

Kept Close To Stalin in Leadership

Many Changes Are Made to Streamline Form of Government and to Prevent Panic

Moscow, March 7 (AP)—Georgi M. Malenkov today led the Soviet Union and its wide dominions—officially—as successor to Joseph V. Stalin. His elevation was accompanied by a wholesale shakeup of top government personnel.

Selection of Stalin's 51-year-old protégé to be the new Russian prime minister was announced by the Kremlin last night. Long a close associate of the dead Communist chief, Malenkov had been considered his likeliest successor. A government communique said the host of other changes—apparently aimed at streamlining the Soviet administration—were necessary to assure "uninterrupted and correct" leadership of the country and to prevent "any kind of disarray and panic" following Stalin's death.

The communique also announced that the Supreme Soviet—the Soviet Union's Parliament—would meet in Moscow March 14 to consider the changes.

Leading Changes

Among the most important switches were:

1. L. P. Beria, boss of the Soviet Secret Police and Russia's Atomic Energy program, named head of the newly combined Interior and State Security ministries. (He presumably also will retain his police and atomic duties.)

2. Deputy Premier V. M. Molotov returned to the post of foreign minister he held from 1939 to 1949. He replaced Andrei Vishinsky, who was appointed permanent Soviet representative to the United Nations in New York.

Vishinsky had taken over the foreign ministry job from Molotov.

3. Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, a member of Stalin's five-man inner War Council during World War 2, was named minister of the armed forces in place of Marshal A. M. Vasilevsky. The latter became a deputy minister.

4. Three deputy foreign ministers also were named—Vishinsky, Jacob Malik, who held the same position under Vishinsky and formerly was Russia's UN delegate, and Vasily Kuznetsov, formerly head of the Soviet trade union movement.

Beria, Molotov, Bulganin and Lazarus Kaganovich were all named deputy prime ministers. Since Beria's name was mentioned first, he will be the top deputy. With Malenkov, these four form a new "Presidium" of the Council of Ministers that apparently will be a highly important government organ.

Voroshilov Is Chairman

Marshal Klementy Voroshilov, formerly a vice-premier, was chosen chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament), replacing Nikolai Shvernik. This post (largely an honorary one) is equivalent to the presidency of the Soviet Union.

Shvernik was made chairman of the All-Union Council of Trade Unions, in place of Vasily Kuznetsov.

Anastase Mikoyan, former commissar of foreign trade, now heads the newly-combined Ministries of Foreign and Internal Trade.

Ten other ministries were merged into three.

Those of the automobile and tractor industry, machine and instrument building and the machine tool industry were combined into the Ministry of Machine Building. M. Z. Saburov was relieved of his post as chief of state planning to take over the combined job.

Malishev Is Director

The four ministries of transport machine building, shipbuilding, heavy machine building and construction and road machine building were telescoped into the Ministry of Transport and Heavy Machine Building. The combined post went to V. A. Malishev, former minister of shipbuilding.

The three ministries of electric power stations, electric industry and communications were streamlined into one—the Ministry of Electric Power and Electrical Industry. M. C. Preukhin was named chief.

The changes were announced by the Central Committee of the Communist Party, the Council of Ministers and the Presidium.

They also set up a new all-powerful 10-man Presidium of the Central Committee, including

President, Businessmen Are Gratified Removal of Controls Helped U. S. Economy

New York, March 6 (AP)—Businessmen have a pat on the back from President Eisenhower today for not hinking the cost of living as price controls end. But restraint from gouging isn't the only factor involved.

Many businessmen have been urging just this same restraint the President praises, and are gratified that business as a whole followed it.

But most of them note realistically that in addition to refraining from gouging, businessmen had these other reasons for not hiking prices on the vast majority of the items from which price curbs have been lifted:

1. In the case of most commodities and products, the supply and demand situation some time ago had brought prices down below ceilings. The controls were academic.

2. In the case of many products

—where high operating costs give an incentive for price rises—competition has become so stiff that manufacturers and retailers don't dare raise prices.

Most of them are anxiously looking for ways to lower costs of production and distribution so that they can bring their prices below those of their competitors.

The east has an example of that today. Just a week ago some oil companies raised the wholesale price of gasoline. But important competitors didn't. So today the companies who did raise prices are lowering them again.

They say their costs justified the price hike—competition kept it from sticking.

Retailers think that competition will work the same way in the case of household appliances, just released from controls.

Some appliance manufacturers complain about the profit margin

squeeze of high operating costs and high taxes. But competition is so keen in many lines, that retailers say the consumer has the whip hand. And prices are likely to rise little, if at all.

Most new auto prices are below ceilings. And used car dealers are reported worried about the chances of prices turning down. There is no long waiting list for most makes of cars—production and sales are about in balance, with output on the rise.

Foods have shown little price changes as controls disappear. At the farm level, prices have been slipping most of the time for two years.

There will be seasonal price changes in foods, of course. Egg and pork prices are bolstered by short supplies. But they are balanced by plentiful supplies of beef and butter.

The lifting of price controls

Malenkov Takes Over as New Soviet Boss; Differ on Outcome of Change for Vishinsky

Move Seen As Setback In Revenge

New UN Delegate Keeps Silent on Malenkov's Promotion to Top Job as Red Premier

United Nations, March 7 (AP)—UN delegates differed today whether the shift of Andrei Y. Vishinsky from Soviet foreign minister to chief Russian UN delegate was a demotion or presaged a new and tougher Soviet line in the world organization.

The change was announced by the Kremlin yesterday as Vishinsky sailed for home. Associates said the tough-talking Moscow lawyer received no advance word of the shift that put Deputy Premier V. M. Molotov in the top foreign minister spot. Vishinsky also was named a deputy foreign minister, a job he had held before.

Declines Comment

Vishinsky declined comment on the Russian government changes—including the selection of Georgi M. Malenkov to succeed Premier Stalin—when reporters reached him aboard the French liner Liberte, a few minutes before the ship left her New York pier.

Later, The Associated Press placed a ship-to-shore call to Vishinsky but was informed that the former foreign minister "is not taking any calls and his secretary does not wish to be disturbed."

Some European delegates familiar with the Russians said Molotov finally has his revenge on the old-time prosecutor. They said Vishinsky was being stationed here to remove him from the Moscow scene.

Never Forgave Vishinsky

Molotov—once tagged by Lenin as a top-rate filling clerk—cushionarily spoke disparagingly of Vishinsky as "just a lawyer." These delegates said Vishinsky, known as a protégé of L. P. Beria, head of the Soviet Political Police, helped engineer the ousting of Molotov as foreign minister on March 5, 1949, and that Molotov never forgot or forgave Vishinsky.

Vishinsky was Stalin's prosecuting purge-master in the great liquidation trials of 1936-37 and has often spoken against delegates here as though they were defendants in a Moscow courtroom.

The turn of events completely surprised delegates. Another surprising turn was the sudden departure of Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet ambassador to London, from Britain for the United States to take over the delegation until Vishinsky can return from Moscow.

Knows How to Be Ruthless

It was reported here that Gromyko had had a visit to come to the United States for about two weeks. This raised conjecture in some minds that the Russians had planned to send Gromyko earlier or had planned to keep him in reserve for such a shake-up as took place today.

Delegates inclined to believe the Russians would take a tougher position in the UN pointed out Vishinsky knew how to carry out orders to the fullest and how to be ruthless.

They speculated the Russians had become concerned by reports that the Eisenhower administration planned a tough line in the UN, and elsewhere were moving to meet it.

Some European delegates also conjectured that the appointments announced in Moscow

Has Freedom on Project Since Stalin's Death; Was Busy With It Long Time

Kept Close To Stalin in Leadership

Many Changes Are Made to Streamline Form of Government and to Prevent Panic

Moscow, March 7 (AP)—Georgi M. Malenkov today led the Soviet Union and its wide dominions—officially—as successor to Joseph V. Stalin. His elevation was accompanied by a wholesale shakeup of top government personnel.

Selection of Stalin's 51-year-old protégé to be the new Russian prime minister was announced by the Kremlin last night. Long a close associate of the dead Communist chief, Malenkov had been considered his likeliest successor.

A government communique said the host of other changes—apparently aimed at streamlining the Soviet administration—were necessary to assure "uninterrupted and correct" leadership of the country and to prevent "any kind of disarray and panic" following Stalin's death.

The communique also announced that the Supreme Soviet—the Soviet Union's Parliament—would meet in Moscow March 14 to consider the changes.

Leading Changes

Among the most important switches were:

1. L. P. Beria, boss of the Soviet Secret Police and Russia's Atomic Energy program, named head of the newly combined Interior and State Security ministries. (He presumably also will retain his police and atomic duties.)

2. Deputy Premier V. M. Molotov returned to the post of foreign minister he held from 1939 to 1949. He replaced Andrei Vishinsky, who was appointed permanent Soviet representative to the United Nations in New York. Vishinsky had taken over the foreign ministry job from Molotov.

3. Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, a member of Stalin's five-man inner War Council during World War 2, was named minister of the armed forces in place of Marshal A. M. Vasilevsky. The latter became a deputy minister.

4. Three deputy foreign ministers also were named—Vishinsky, Jacob Malik, who held the same position under Vishinsky and formerly was Russia's UN delegate, and Vassily Kuznetsov, formerly head of the Soviet trade union movement.

Beria, Molotov, Bulganin and Lazarus Kaganovich were all named deputy prime ministers. Since Beria's name was mentioned first, he will be the top deputy. With Malenkov, these four form a new "Presidium" of the Council of Ministers that apparently will be a highly important government organ.

Voroshilov Is Chairman

Marshal Klementy Voroshilov, formerly a vice-premier, was chosen chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament), replacing Nikolai Shvernik. This post (formerly an honorary one) is equivalent to the presidency of the Soviet Union.

Shvernik was made chairman of the All-Union Council of Trade Unions, in place of Vassily Kuznetsov.

Anastase Mikoyan, former commissar of foreign trade, now heads the newly-combined Ministries of Foreign and Internal Trade.

Ten other ministries were merged into three.

Those of the automobile and tractor industry, machine and instrument building and the machine tool industry were combined into the Ministry of Machine Building. M. L. Saburov was relieved of his post as chief of state planning to take over the combined job.

Malishev Is Director

The four ministries of transport machine building, shipbuilding, heavy machine building and construction and road machine building were telescoped into the Ministry of Transport and Heavy Machine Building. The combined post went to V. A. Malishev, former minister of shipbuilding.

The three ministries of electric power stations, electric industry and communications were streamlined into one—the Ministry of Electric Power and Electrical Industry. M. C. Preuvkhin was named chief.

The changes were announced by the Central Committee of the Communist Party, the Council of Ministers and the Presidium.

They also set up a new all-powerful 10-man Presidium of the Central Committee, including

President, Businessmen Are Gratified Removal of Controls Helped U. S. Economy

New York, March 6 (AP)—Businessmen have a pat on the back from President Eisenhower today for not hiking the cost of living as price controls end. But restraint from gouging isn't the only factor involved.

Many businessmen have been urging just this same restraint the President praises, and are gratified that business as a whole followed it.

But most of them note realistically that in addition to refraining from gouging, businessmen had these other reasons for not hiking prices on the vast majority of the items from which price curbs have been lifted:

1. In the case of most commodities and products, the supply and demand situation some time ago had brought prices down below ceilings. The controls were academic.
2. In the case of many products

—where high operating costs give an incentive for price rises—competition has become so stiff that manufacturers and retailers don't dare raise prices.

Looking for ways to lower costs of production and distribution so that they can bring their prices below those of their competitors.

The east has an example of that today. Just a week ago some oil companies raised the wholesale price of gasoline. But important competitors didn't. So today the companies who did raise prices are lowering them again.

They say their costs justified the price hike—competition kept it from sticking.

Retailers think that competition will work the same way in the case of household appliances, just released from controls.

Some appliance manufacturers complain about the profit margin

squeeze of high operating costs and high taxes. But competition is so keen in many lines, that retailers say the consumer has the whip hand. And prices are likely to rise little, if at all.

Most new auto prices are below ceilings. And used car dealers are reported worried about the chances of prices turning down. There is no long waiting list for most makes of cars—production and sales are about in balance, with output on the rise.

Foods have shown little price changes as controls disappear. At the farm level, prices have been slipping most of the time for two years.

There will be seasonal price changes in foods, of course. Egg and pork prices are bolstered by short supplies. But they are balanced by plentiful supplies of beef and butter.

The lifting of price controls

Noted Preacher To Talk Thursday At Uptown Church

The Rev. Dr. George A. Buttrick, world-renowned preacher, lecturer, author and, since 1927, the distinguished pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York, will have his first preaching engagement in Kingston, Thursday, March 12, at 8 p. m. in St. James Methodist Church, of which the Rev. Dr. Ralph M. Houston is pastor. This service with Dr. Buttrick was originally scheduled for the First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf street and Tremper avenue, as the result of three successive Thursday night Lenten services sponsored by the Session and pastor, the Rev. William J. McVey. In anticipation of an overflow audience, and because of the unusual opportunity of hearing Dr. Buttrick, St. James Church agreed to include the service in its Lenten church program and jointly sponsor it with the First Presbyterian Church.

The career of Dr. Buttrick has been one of varied and notable distinction in the ministry of the Christian Church. Prior to his arrival in America from England in 1915, at the age of 23, to become pastor of the First Congregational Church, Quincy, Ill., he had graduated from Victoria University, Manchester, with honors in Philosophy, and from Lancaster Independent Seminary. His succeeding pastorates were as follows: the First Congregational Church, Rutland, Vt., 1918-1921; the First Presbyterian Church, Buffalo, 1921-1927; and thence to his present charge as successor to the Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin.

His fame as an author began in 1928 with the publication of the book, entitled The Parables of Jesus, which was chosen as The Religious Book of the Month selection. In 1931 he gave the Yale Lectures on Preaching, and these were published under the title of Jesus Came Preaching, which was also a Book of the Month selection. This was followed by The Christian Fact and Modern Doubt, in 1934; and in 1942 came his great work on Prayer. Four years later Christ and Man's Dilemma was published; and his most recent book is entitled God in Education. At present he is editor-in-chief of the massive 12-volume Bible commentary, now in process of publication, called The Interpreter's Bible, of which four volumes have been published. Last year he was lecturer on the Joseph C. Cook Foundation Lectureship, which required an extensive tour of the Orient. At Union Theological Seminary he has been for several years special lecturer on Preaching and Homiletics.

Is The Catholic Church A MENACE TO DEMOCRACY?

Every now and then a false rumor about the Catholic Church gets into circulation and—for a time—fools a lot of people.

Usually such rumors die out when fair-minded people learn the truth. But some of them pop up again like "ghosts" out of the distant past, to deceive people who have not heard them before.

The one most prevalent today is that American freedom is in danger from "the anti-democratic program of the Roman hierarchy." This, to some people, will sound new and alarming. Actually, there is nothing new about it.

EXPERTS SEE INTERNAL STRUGGLES

Premier Joseph Stalin was the most crushing tyrant in human history. He was the architect of Russia's rise to military and political domination of vast non-Russian lands. He was the instrument whereby territorial ambitions long dreamed by the czars were finally fulfilled. He was the supreme symbol of the Communist dream—the most tantalizing yet the most fraudulent hope ever held out to the world's millions of downtrodden peoples.

To consolidate his personal power he visited upon his own countrymen wracking, bloody purges unrivaled anywhere, any time. He brought his land through famine, kept the Soviet Communist experiment working in a hostile globe, then took the helm as supreme military commander in the great war that put Russia in its greatest peril.

After World War II he seized the advantage that grew out of the free world's hesitations, its precipitate demobilization of its mighty armies, to spread the Soviet tentacles across eastern Europe. Soon he was fingering menacingly the throats of other European and Asiatic peoples.

Only the surprise and shock of the West's violent reaction to his pressure upon tiny Korea put Stalin in some check. For essentially he was for riskless gains. He seemed not to want to endanger all he had acquired in the holocaust of another great war.

Prime Minister Churchill once drew dramatic parallel between Stalin's sprawling adventures and the marauding conquests of Genghis Khan, chief of the Mongol hordes who spilled eastward across the Asian steppes and overlapped the fringes of Europe itself. In an American speech in 1949, Churchill said:

"It seemed nothing could avert the doom of the famous continent from which modern civilization and culture have spread throughout the world.

"But at the critical moment something happened—the great Khan died.

"The succession was vacant and the Mongol armies and their leaders trooped back on their ponies across 7,000 miles which separated them from their capital, to choose a successor. They never returned until now."

Will history repeat itself? Again and again in dictatorships the passing of the leader has made the house of tyranny a shambles as his heirs grasp desperately for the strands of power. Confusion reigns.

It happened in the Soviet Union on the death of Lenin in 1924. A bitter contest for power between Stalin and Leon Trotsky ensued, a test that was not finally ended until 1938, when the bloody purges struck down many of Stalin's pioneer comrades.

In that long interval, Russia was immersed in the great internal struggle. Its strains and confusion were a bar to the exercise of external ambitions. It must be the hope of all free men that the story now will be the same.

The experts on Russia for the most part believe such a struggle will indeed follow. Many feel the recent purges in Russia and the satellites were the first rumbling of that.

Stalin may have scrupulously prepared a plan of succession, may have fingered his individual successor. But in states which live by power alone, neatly laid plans have a way of going awry. It is possible that with no one left who possesses the force of Stalin's personality, the battle may be intense and prolonged and may even make the holding together of the Soviet empire extremely difficult.

To the Russian analysts in America and the West we leave the speculation over the succession and the specific course of the struggle. Here it is important to note chiefly that the path will not be smooth, and that its rocky prospect is the West's great opportunity.

There is no moment to sit back and allow Stalin's heirs to resolve their rivalries without harassment. This is the time for the United States and its allies to assert a new, dynamic policy to take full practical and psychological advantage of the fate that has struck the Kremlin.

Let us exploit this chance by every fair and reasonable means short of war.

At the same time, let us not relax our

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

STALIN AT THE SMOLNY

Back in 1917 and 1918, I was in charge of a little newspaper, published in Petrograd (now Leningrad), called "The Russian Daily News." The Bolsheviks had taken over a girls' school, the Smolny Institute, where they made their headquarters and from which they conducted a dual government until the October Revolution, when they seized power in Russia.

The big men of the day were Kerensky, Lenin, Trotsky, Chernov, Tsereteli, Kamenev, Zinoviev. As a reporter, these were the men I sought out for data, for explanations of events to come. Among the lesser folks were J. Stalin, then head of the Commissariat for Nationalities of the Bolshevik Party.

Stalin was an obscure personality who rarely spoke at meetings. In fact, although I would see him about—Koba, his intimates called him—he made little impression. In the Smolny, he was one of a great many active and fierce-looking figures. His peck-marked face, his short stature did not add to his attractiveness.

Such figures as Madame Kollontai, who was as beautiful and striking as Clare Luce and who afterwards became an important Soviet diplomat, excited interest and attention. The sailor, Dybenko, looked heroic. Trotsky was full of life and significance. Bukharin and Lunacharsky were philosophical and pedantic. But Stalin seemed to be stoic, quiet, distant. One did not pay too much attention to him. This is before he became General Secretary of the Communist Party.

I have a file of my newspaper, "The Russian Daily News," with me, having saved it all these years. A hurried glance does not show that even there on the spot, I ever wrote anything about Stalin in the news, although a more thorough check may show that he did provide some data on the smaller peoples, the Kalmuks, Uzbeks, Kazaks and the Jews and Ukrainians, with whom he concerned himself.

John Reed was a contemporary in those days in Russia and he was so absorbed in it that he finally went over to the Bolsheviks and was buried in the Kremlin wall. As I write this, I am thumbing his book, "Ten Days That Shook the World," but I do not run across Stalin's name except a mention in the appendix. Although I had a pass to the Smolny and moved about it freely—but with decreasing freedom as the Bolsheviks rose to power—Reed was a big man among them and advised them on their diplomacy. Yet, in his book, he did not find it important to note the incidence of Stalin.

In later years, when Stalin rose to power, I tried to recall those early impressions and what I remembered best was his black, handlebar mustache, which made him look, to me, like a Rumanian I once knew in Greenwich Village whom we called "The Terrible Turk," and that Stalin's fanatical eyes were unforgettable.

In looking through my material on the Constituent Assembly, which was the last attempt to establish some kind of a democratic government in Russia and which was attended by all the leaders of all parties in Russia, I do not find that Stalin spoke. He may have been there, but all attention was upon Lenin.

The Bolsheviks were so fractional in the Constituent Assembly that when they walked out they hardly left a visible sign of their absence. Yet their retirement from it killed this notable assembly. I was able to stand close to the stage in Tauride Palace and to watch all that happened. Lenin sat on the stage and seemed amused all the time. He was a simple person, who might have been taken for a schoolteacher or a small businessman. Trotsky was the fire-eater, the mass orator.

Stalin was there, he was in the crowd. During the months between September, 1917 and March, 1918, when the world was being changed by the Revolution, Stalin remained a minor figure, recallable only by challenging one's memory and searching through one's material. It was later that he rose to power, killing on the way most of his old colleagues.

But he does come back to memory as the man who even then could say that minority nationalities are important and from whose lips I once heard the names of the small peoples who made up what became his empire.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

IMPORTANCE OF FIRST PERMANENT TEETH

I have stated before that if parents and teachers could see an X-ray film showing the first or temporary teeth with the permanent set immediately above and below waiting and ready to take the places of the baby or temporary teeth, they would never forget it. It is a great lesson to all to see how Nature, the friendly force behind mankind, has the permanent teeth ready to fill the spaces left when the temporary teeth are worn out or lost.

Naturally, as the permanent set are more numerous and larger, our dentists try to keep the temporary teeth in the mouth as long as possible as this allows the jaws to grow and make room for the permanent set. If some of the temporary teeth are lost too soon, before jaws have enlarged to provide spaces for the permanent teeth, there will not be room enough for the permanent teeth and they may grow in an irregular manner. This is why you see children with "braces" about their teeth as the specialist tries to make room for the permanent teeth.

Teeth are important to health for biting but more particularly for chewing food, mixing food well with the digestive juice of the stomach to carry on the next step in digestion.

The first permanent teeth to come through the gums and take the place of the temporary teeth is the first molar, just permanent molar. In the Journal of the American Dental Association, Dr. A. J. Klaffenbach of Iowa City, professor emeritus of the College of Dentistry, State University of Iowa, says the first permanent molar is the keynote of the dental arch and every means possible should be used to save the tooth. Many parents do not realize the first molar is not a "baby" tooth because it erupts or comes through the gums when first or baby teeth are still present. This first permanent molar is vital because of its influence in lining up all the permanent teeth, the closure of the jaws and on the whole appearance of the face. If parents realized how a boy, and particularly a girl, can develop an inferiority complex from irregular teeth, they would try to save this first molar as long as possible. And if this tooth is lost too early; they will have their dentist or a specialist do his best to keep the teeth regular.

If the tooth is lost without some restoration being made or the space maintained, the other permanent teeth may "drift" and become badly aligned.

Fortunately, our dentists are now well equipped to prevent decay of teeth which will greatly reduce the early loss of baby or temporary teeth.

guard, for we cannot ignore the menace that Stalin's passing will throw power into the hands of extremists who would reach for more at the peril of losing all.

The world equation has been altered, and free men's hopes may now rise higher.

Washington — (NEA) — There should be enough oil and gas for both the states and the federal government under the new tideland oil division recommended by Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay.

Under this division, Louisiana, California and other coastal states except Texas and Florida would be given all off-shore oil and gas rights within three miles of their coast lines. The federal government would get all the rights on the continental shelf beyond the three-mile limit.

Texas and Florida, because of the conditions under which they were admitted to the Union would be given all rights within "three leagues"—10½ miles—of their coast lines. And the federal government would be given all rights on the continental shelf beyond the three-mile limit.

U. S. Geological Survey experts have estimated the proved and potential oil and gas reserves inside and outside these newly proposed lines. Proved reserves, based on actual land and off-shore production, are:

Louisiana—84 million barrels of oil inside the three-mile limit. Outside, 335 million barrels of oil and two trillion cubic feet of gas.

Texas—Inside 10-mile limit, 15 million barrels of oil and 75 billion cubic feet of gas. Outside, nothing proved.

California—Inside three-mile limit, 160 million barrels of oil. Outside, nothing proved.

The quoted potential reserves in these areas are mere guesses based on an assumption that the off-shore oil and gas formations will be of the same character as the land pools. Based on an estimate of 20 million barrels of oil and 150 billion cubic feet of gas in each field, they run as follows:

Louisiana—Inside three-mile limit, 250 million barrels of oil and 1.25 trillion cubic feet of gas. Outside, 3.75 billion barrels of oil and 18.75 trillion cubic feet of gas.

Texas—Inside 10-mile limit, 1.2 billion barrels of oil, six trillion cubic feet of gas. Outside, 7.8 billion barrels of oil and 39 trillion cubic feet of gas.

California—Inside three-mile limit, 1.1 billion barrels of oil and two trillion cubic feet of gas. Outside, one billion barrels of oil and 1.5 trillion cubic feet of gas.

Geologists won't make any estimate of oil or gas off the Florida coast, because there is now no production on the mainland.

Answer to Puzzle

Announcement that U. S. government had given the French government a $106 million contract to build 38 small naval vessels in France caused some puzzlement in Washington. The ships are to be paid for with U. S. money, but given to the French Navy upon completion.

Since the U. S. Navy still has many ships in mothballs, a question was raised as to whether it wouldn't have been cheaper to give some of these surplus vessels to France than to buy new ones for her?

The explanation given by U. S. Navy spokesmen is that these new ships are to be wood hulls, partially because of their anti-magnetic characteristics.

Nearly all of the vessels are to be mine-sweepers and net-tenders, and the U. S. has no surplus of these craft in mothballs. In the last two years, 40 to 50 U. S. anti-mine craft have been demobilized and put on active service in Korean waters.

The average cost of under $3 million for the 38 new craft to be built in France is said to be less than the cost of similar ships if built in U. S. yards. This is a regular procedure under the foreign military aid, "off-shore procurement" program. A similar shipbuilding order was placed in Italy last year.

Formosan Chinese Arm U. S.

The U. S. has also just signed an "off-shore procurement order" with China's Nationalist government on Formosa for the purchase of nearly $10 million worth of small arms, mortar and recoilless weapon ammunition. It will be manufactured with machinery Chiang Kai-shek's forces were able to bring with them when they fled from the mainland.

The ammunition will go to Korea, the Philippines, Indo-China and Thailand. Some of it will be handed back to the Nationalists free, for their own use. The negotiations were completed by Maj. Gen. George H. Olmstead, retiring head of military assistance program, on his recent visit to the Far East.

EXPERTS SEE INTERNAL STRUGGLES

Premier Joseph Stalin was the most crushing tyrant in human history. He was the architect of Russia's rise to military and political domination of vast non-Russian lands. He was the instrument whereby territorial ambitions long dreamed by the czars were finally fulfilled. He was the supreme symbol of the Communist dream—the most tantalizing yet the most fraudulent hope ever held out to the world's millions of downtrodden peoples.

To consolidate his personal power he visited upon his own countrymen wracking, bloody purges unrivaled anywhere, any time. He brought his land through famine, kept the Soviet Communist experiment working in a hostile globe, then took the helm as supreme military commander in the great war that put Russia in its greatest peril.

After World War II he seized the advantage that grew out of the free world's hesitations, its precipitate demobilization of its mighty armies, to spread the Soviet tentacles across eastern Europe. Soon he was fingering menacingly the throats of other European and Asiatic peoples.

Only the surprise and shock of the West's violent reaction to his pressure upon tiny Korea put Stalin in some check. For essentially he was for riskless gains. He seemed not to want to endanger all he had acquired in the holocaust of another great war.

Prime Minister Churchill once drew dramatic parallel between Stalin's sprawling adventures and the marauding conquests of Genghis Khan, chief of the Mongol hordes who spilled eastward across the Asian steppes and overlapped the fringes of Europe itself. In an American speech in 1949, Churchill said:

"It seemed nothing could avert the doom of the famous continent from which modern civilization and culture have spread throughout the world.

"But at the critical moment something happened—the great Khan died.

"The succession was vacant and the Mongol armies and their leaders trooped back on their ponies across 7,000 miles which separated them from their capital, to choose a successor. They never returned until now."

Will history repeat itself? Again and again in dictatorships the passing of the leader has made the house of tyranny a shambles as his heirs grasp desperately for the strands of power. Confusion reigns.

It happened in the Soviet Union on the death of Lenin in 1924. A bitter contest for power between Stalin and Leon Trotsky ensued, a test that was not finally ended until 1938, when the bloody purges struck down many of Stalin's pioneer comrades.

In that long interval, Russia was immersed in the great internal struggle. Its strains and confusion were a bar to the exercise of external ambitions. It must be the hope of all free men that the story now will be the same.

The experts on Russia for the most part believe such a struggle will indeed follow. Many feel the recent purges in Russia and the satellites were the first rumbling of that.

Stalin may have scrupulously prepared a plan of succession, may have fingered his individual successor. But in states which live by power alone, neatly laid plans have a way of going awry. It is possible that with no one left who possesses the force of Stalin's personality, the battle may be intense and prolonged and may even make the holding together of the Soviet empire extremely difficult.

To the Russian analysts in America and the West we leave the speculation over the succession and the specific course of the struggle. Here it is important to note chiefly that the path will not be smooth, and that its rocky prospect is the West's great opportunity.

his is no moment to sit back and allow Stalin's heirs to resolve their rivalries without harassment. This is the time for the United States and its allies to assert a new, dynamic policy to take full practical and psychological advantage of the fate that has struck the Kremlin.

Let us exploit this chance by every fair and reasonable means short of war.

At the same time, let us not relax our

'These Days'

STALIN AT THE SMOLNY

Back in 1917 and 1918, I was in charge of a little newspaper, published in Petrograd (now Leningrad), called "The Russian Daily News." The Bolsheviks had taken over a girls' school, the Smolny Institute, where they made their headquarters and from which they conducted a dual government until the October Revolution, when they seized power in Russia.

The big men of the day were Kerensky, Lenin, Trotsky, Chernov, Tsereteli, Kamenev, Zinoviev. As a reporter, these were the men I sought out for data, for explanations of events to come. Among the lesser folks were J. Stalin, then head of the Commissariat for Nationalities of the Bolshevik Party.

Stalin was an obscure personality who rarely spoke at meetings. In fact, although I would see him about—Koba, his intimates called him—he made little impression. In the Smolny, he was one of a great many active and fierce-looking figures. His pock-marked face, his short stature did not add to his attractiveness.

Such figures as Madame Kolontai, who was as beautiful and striking as Clara Zetkin and who afterwards became an important Soviet diplomat, excited interest and attention. The sailor, Dybenko, looked heroic. Trotsky was full of life and significance. Bukharin and Lunacharsky were philosophical and pedantic. But Stalin seemed to be stolid, quiet, distant. One did not pay too much attention to him. This is before he became General Secretary of the Communist Party.

I have a file of my newspaper, "The Russian Daily News," with me, having saved it all these years. A hurried glance does not show that even there on the spot, I ever wrote anything about Stalin in the news, although a more thorough check may show that he did provide some data on the smaller peoples, the Kalmuks, Uzbeks, Kazaks and the Jews and Ukrainians, with whom he concerned himself.

John Reed was a contemporary in those days in Russia and he was so absorbed in it that he finally went over to the Bolsheviks and was buried in the Kremlin wall. As I write this, I am thumbing his book, "Ten Days That Shook the World," but I do not run across Stalin's name except a mention in the appendix. Although I had a pass to the Smolny and moved about it freely—but with decreasing freedom as the Bolsheviks rose to power—Reed was a big man among them and advised them on their diplomacy. Yet, in his book, he did not find it important to note the incidence of Stalin.

In later years, when Stalin rose to power, I tried to recall those early impressions and what I remembered best was his black, handlebar mustache, which made him look, to me, like a Rumanian I once knew in Greenwich Village whom we called "The Terrible Turk."

In looking through my material on the Constituent Assembly, which was the last attempt to establish some kind of a democratic government in Russia and which was attended by all the leaders of all parties in Russia, I do not find that Stalin spoke. He may have been there, but all attention was upon Lenin.

The Bolsheviks were so fractional in the Constituent Assembly that when they walked out they hardly left a visible sign of their absence. Yet their retirement from it killed this notable assembly. I was able to stand close to the stage in Tauride Palace and to watch all that happened. Lenin sat on the stage and seemed amused all the time. He was a simple person, who might have been taken for a schoolteacher or a small businessman. Trotsky was the fire-eater, the mass orator.

If Stalin was there, he was in the crowd. During the months between September, 1917 and March, 1918, when the world was being changed by the Revolution, Stalin remained a minor figure, recallable only by challenging one's memory and searching through one's material. It was later that he rose to power, killing on the way most of his old colleagues.

But he does come back to memory as the man who even then could say that minority nationalities are important and from whose lips I once heard the names of the small peoples who made up what became his empire.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

IMPORTANCE OF FIRST PERMANENT TEETH

I have stated before that if parents and teachers could see an X-ray film showing the first or temporary teeth with the permanent set immediately above and below waiting and ready to take the places of the baby or temporary teeth, they would never forget it. It is a great lesson to all to see how Nature, the friendly force behind mankind, has the permanent teeth ready to fill the spaces left when the temporary teeth are worn out or lost.

Naturally, as the permanent set are more numerous and larger, our dentists try to keep the temporary teeth in the mouth as long as possible as this allows the jaws to grow and make room for the permanent set. If some of the temporary teeth are lost too soon, before the jaws have enlarged to provide spaces for the permanent teeth, there will not be room enough for the permanent teeth and they may grow in an irregular manner. This is why you see children with "braces" about their teeth as the specialist tries to make room for the permanent teeth.

Teeth are important to health for biting but more particularly for chewing food, mixing food well with the digestive juice of the stomach to carry on the next step in digestion.

The first permanent teeth to come through the gums and take the place of the temporary teeth is the first molar, first permanent molar. In the Journal of the American Dental Association, Dr. A. J. Klaffenbach of Iowa City, professor emeritus of the College of Dentistry, State University of Iowa, says the first permanent molar is the keynote of the dental arch and every means possible should be used to save the tooth. Many parents do not realize the first molar is not a "baby" tooth because it erupts or comes through the gums when first or baby teeth are still present. This first permanent molar is vital because of its influence in lining up all the permanent teeth, the closure of the jaws and on the whole appearance of the face. If parents realized how a boy, and particularly a girl, can develop an inferiority complex from irregular teeth, they would try to save this first molar as long as possible. And if this tooth is lost too early; they will have their dentist or a specialist do his best to keep the teeth regular.

"If the tooth is lost without some restoration being made or the space maintained, the other permanent teeth may 'drift' and become badly aligned."

Fortunately, our dentists are now well equipped to prevent decay of teeth which will greatly reduce the early loss of baby or temporary teeth.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, "Children Are People," etc.)

INCONSIDERATE THEATROGOERS

I earnestly second the plea made in the following letter: "Will you please say something in your column to the theater-goers who go out during intermission for a cigarette and return after the lights have gone out and the performance has resumed. I find this habit most annoying and lacking in consideration for others. Nine times out of ten it is done by people who should know better."

There is no act that is more inconsiderate than not going back to your seats when you are notified that the curtain is about to go up. It is not only disagreeable to the people in the audience when you are standing between them and the stage, but it is very upsetting to the actors.

Marking Silver

Dear Mrs. Post: My silver is very ornate and there is really no place to have it marked on top where silver is always marked. Someone suggested having it marked on the underside. Will you please give me your opinion of this? It seems silly to me to mark it at all if it won't show.

Answer: I agree with you that having it marked on the underside would be senseless—unless it is very fine silver that is intended to be a family heirloom and you want to establish a record of its ownership.

Young Man's Obligations

Dear Mrs. Post: My son, who goes to college in another city, has invited his best friend to a fraternity dance and is concerned about his obligations. We would very much appreciate hearing from you as to just what is expected of him.

Answer: If several of his classmates are taking rooms for their partners at a hotel or in someone's house, then the boys are supposed to pay for it, but if she stays alone at a hotel, she pays it. Your son would invite her to as many meals as he can and, of course, will send her flowers to wear to the dance.

Is it proper to use colored table linen? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but answers to questions about table linen, silver, and table setting are included in booklet No. 504, "Table Setting." To obtain a copy, send 25 cents in coin to her, c/o The Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

INCONSIDERATE THEATERGOERS

I earnestly second the plea made in the following letter: "Will you please say something in your column to the theatergoers who go out during intermission for a cigarette and return after the lights have gone out and the performance has resumed. I find this habit most annoying and lacking in consideration for others. Nine times out of ten it is done by people who should know better."

There is no act that is more inconsiderate than not going back to your seats when you are notified that the curtain is about to go up. It is not only disagreeable to the people in the audience when you are standing between them and the stage, but it is very upsetting to the actors.

Marking Silver

Dear Mrs. Post: My silver is very ornate and there is really no place to have it marked on top where silver is always marked. Someone suggested having it marked on the underside. Will you please give me your opinion of this? It seems silly to me to mark it at all if it won't show.

Answer: I agree with you that having it marked on the underside would be senseless—unless it is very fine silver that is intended to be a family heirloom and you want to establish a record of its ownership.

Young Man's Obligations

Dear Mrs. Post: My son, who goes to college in another city, has invited his best girl friend to a fraternity dance and is concerned about his obligations. We would very much appreciate hearing from you as to just what is expected of him.

Answer: If several of his classmates are taking rooms for their partners at a hotel or in someone's house, then the boys are supposed to pay for it, but if she stays alone at a hotel, she pays it. Your son would invite her to as many meals as he can and, of course, will send her flowers to lead to the dance.

Is it proper to use colored table linen? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail, but answers to questions about table linen, silver, and table setting are included in booklet No. 504, "Table Setting." To obtain a copy, send 25 cents in coin to her, The Freeman, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

(Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

The Hilltoppers will play for dancing until midnight.

Before going on vacation have home exterminated; $150 up.
—Houston (Tex.) paper

Long avenue is the shortest street in Steele, Mo.—Mrs. Louis Boeckman, Albers, Ill.

An applicant for a position was asked if she had a hobby. "I collect bottles," with notes in them," was the reply.

Eager to hear more about such a specialized interest, the employer pressed for details.

"Oh, on Sundays," explained the young woman, "I go out to the beach and lie on my back and wait for the waves to wash up bottles with notes in them from shipwrecked sailors. I haven't found any yet—but what a swell rest I get!"

The upper crust is just a bunch of crumbs stuck together with their own dough.—Fibber McGee.

A young woman just home from college for summer vacation and very enthusiastic about the benefits of physical culture, said to her father.

Daughter—Just watch this exercise. To develop the arms, I grip the rod by one end and move it slowly from left to right.

Father—Well, well! What won't science discover next! If that rod had straw on the other end, you'd be sweeping.

A young man recently received induction orders from the War Office. His reply, in the form of a letter, said in part, "See St. Luke 14:20."

The verse says, "I have married a wife and therefore I cannot come."

The following reply, although unconfirmed, is said to have originated in the War Office. "Your attention is drawn to St. Luke 7:8."

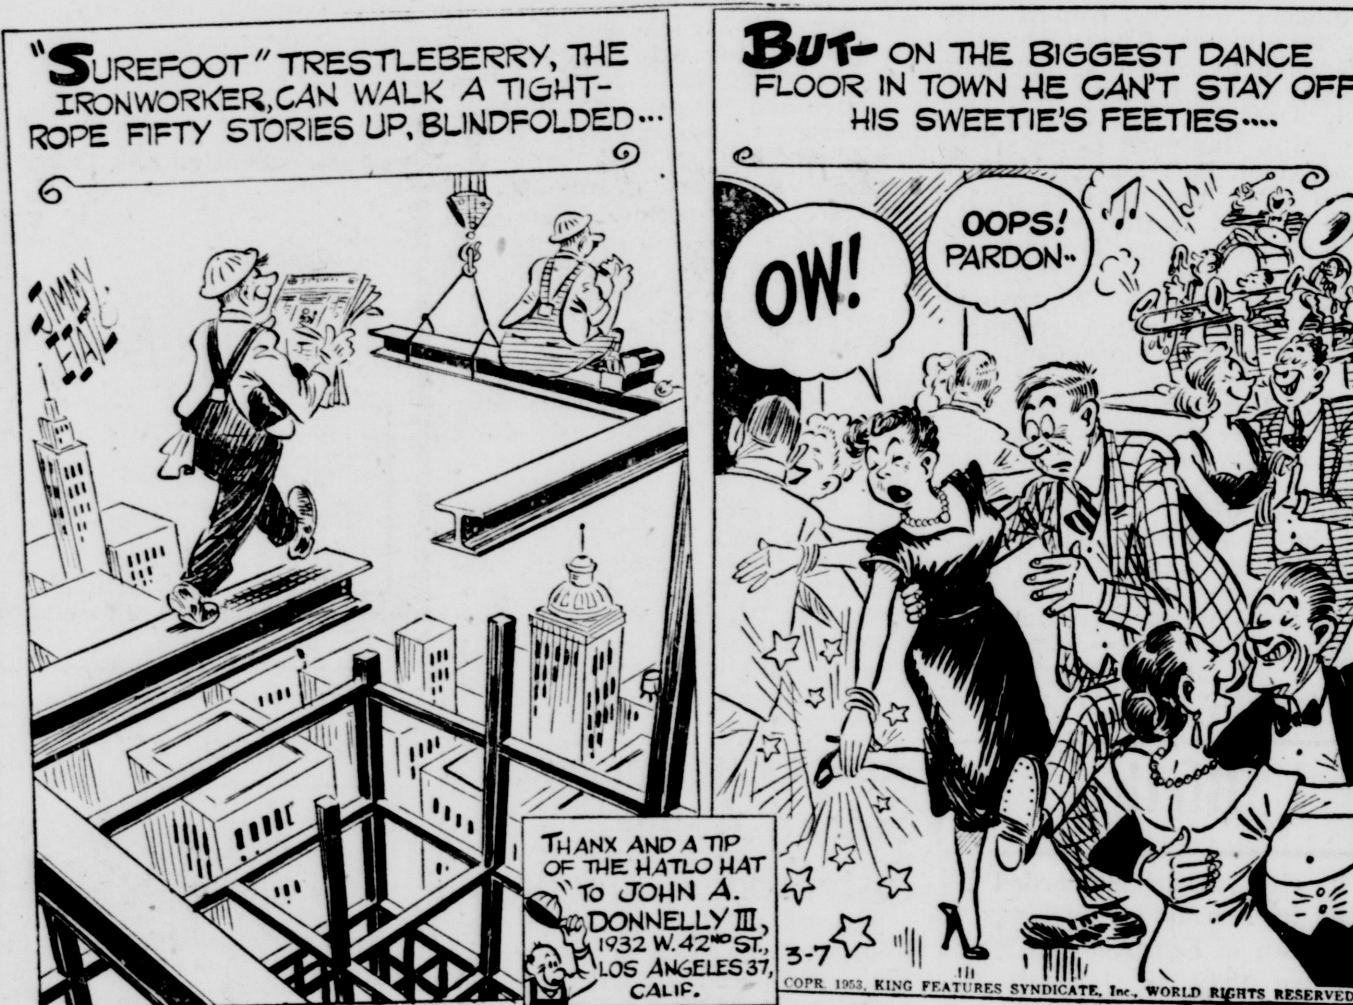

This verse reads: "For I also am a man set under authority having under me soldiers, and I say unto one, go, and he goeth, and to another, come, and he cometh."

It is presumed the young man heeded.

Milk Sources

In one part of the world or another, human beings consume the milk of 11 different animals; asses, buffalos, camels, cows, goats, horses, llamas, reindeer, sheep, yaks, and zebras. Of all these, reindeer supply the richest milk.

Valuable Oil

Tall oil is recovered from the cooking of wood. A byproduct of the paper industry, it is used in the manufacture of cutting, grinding, and boring oils, and yields chemicals valuable in the drug field, paints and varnishes, and processing of textiles and leathers.

Preparing Applesauce

When you're preparing applesauce cook the apples in as little water as possible, as rapidly as possible. Stir in the sweetener after the apples are cooked. For old-fashioned applesauce, just mash the cooked apples with a fork; for a smooth applesauce put them through a sieve or a food mill.

Immigration Quotas

Immigration quotas for 1953 permit entrance of 154,657 persons, more than 60,000 of whom may come from Great Britain and Northern Ireland.

KHS Thumps Nott Terrace in Intersectional Opener, 80 to 64

Mirons Home Tonight; Rapps Bowl Vet Cabs

Rapp's Express could do a lot to help the cause of Miron Lumber tonight when they meet the second place Veterans' Cabs in Poughkeepsie.

Meanwhile, the Lumberjacks will try to see to it at the Bowldrome that at least their slim two-game lead is protected as the Hudson Valley Bowling League schedule opens its final full month of play.

Mirons will engage the Poughkeepsie Orphans at Alleys 7-8 at the Cornell street tenpin center tonight.

Elston's Also Home
Kingston's other local entry, Elston Sport Shop, also is booked for a home encounter at the Central Rec. where the Sportsmen will meet the Bennett Roofers of Middletown.

Miron Lumber held its two-game lead last weekend by winning two as did the Veterans Cabs. The Ellenville Shanahans are in third place with 48-27 following Mirons with 52-23 and the Cabs with 50-25.

Arlington Lanes of Poughkeepsie are fourth with 47-28 while Kelly Motors of Newburgh are lodged in fifth place with a 43-32 mark.

Frank Greco of Ellenville still holds the No. 1 position in indi-

Ron Mauro Cracks 609 In Bowldrome Classic

Ronnie Mauro edged Harold Broskie for the individual leadership in local tenpin circles Friday night with a 609 series in the Ferraro Classic League at the Bowldrome.

Mauro achieved the hat trick with scores of 202-204-203 for the top position.

Broskie, who rolled 30 clean frames, trailed Mauro by a single stick with his 608 three-timer on scores of 215-195-157.

The only other 600 turned in was by veteran Scott Vining who polished the maples for games of 202 and 201 and a 602 series.

The rest of the notable efforts were compiled by Bob Geisler with 215-221-594; Jack "Scribe" Chichelsky 220-589; Lou Barone 233-586; George Schick 223-581 and Seymour Markowitz 220-580.

Barrows Motors won two from Modjeskas and increased their lead to four games over Esso Oil. Team results:

Greco Brothers 2, Esso Oil 1; Barrows Motors 2, Modjeskas 1; Jo-Aks 3, Central Hudson 0; Newcombe Oil 3, Ballantines 0.

Houghtaling Raps 598
Jackie Houghtaling opened with a sizzling 232 singleton and added sticks of 181 and 185 for 598 to lead the Everybody's wheel at the Central Recs last night.

Po'keepsie Tops Liberty Quintet

Poughkeepsie High School scored a 74 to 58 victory over Liberty High in last night's final action of the DUSO League.

Leo Elwell, top Poughkeepsie scorer, bucketed 24 points giving him a season's total of 383, a new individual record for a Poughkeepsie player.

Snead, Mayer Tied With 137 In Golf Open

Baton Rouge, La., March 7 (AP)—Sam Snead, one of golf's top money winners, and Dick Mayer, a newcomer who's been at the paywindow in 10 of his last 12 tournaments, led a whittled-down field into the third round $10,000 Baton Rouge Open today.

The West Virginia mountaineer with the phenomenal long irons and the youthful former tank sergeant from St. Petersburg, Fla., carded seven-under-par 137s at the end of 36 holes yesterday at tournament officials separated the men from the boys by drawing the line at 149.

Only 60 big name pros who scored under the elimination figure and the 10 leading amateurs were left to seek gold or glory over the par 72, 6,411-yard Baton Rouge Country Club course.

All indications pointed to a photo finish with an even 20 golfers going into the third round still clutching below-par records after two days of competition.

Slammin' Sammy Snead, the pre-tourney favorite, patted a nifty 68 beside his opening day 69 in the big green scoreboard to tie young Mayer and overhaul first round leaders Freddie Hass, Jr., of New Orleans and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va.

Mayer, a 28-year-old Connecticut Yankee who abandoned the amateur ranks only two years ago to head for Florida and professional golf's elusive pot of gold, played his scintillating second round almost unheralded and un-

Knicks Increase Margin Over Nats

(By The Associated Press)
The New York Knickerbockers had the NBA's Eastern Division title virtually sewed up today.

The Knicks whipped the second-place Syracuse Nationals, 75-66, last night to take a three-game lead over the Nats and the Boston Celtics. All three clubs have only five games left to play.

With Easy Ed Macaulay scoring 46 points, the Celts trimmed the Minneapolis Lakers, 100-85. The Fort Wayne Pistons downed the Indianapolis Olympians, 73-64, in the other league game.

A third quarter, 18-9, edge gave the Knicks their victory over Syracuse. Vince Boryla of New York was the game's high scorer with 22 points.

Macaulay tallied 32 points in the first half and added 14 in the second as he tied the season's high mark set by big George Mikan of Minneapolis.

Fort Wayne came from behind with a 30-point fourth period to whip the Olympians.

Penn Can Clinch Ivy League Tie Tonight

New York, March 7 (AP)—Pennsylvania gets a chance to nail down at least a tie in the Ivy League basketball race tonight when it entertains Cornell.

The Quakers have won eight games while losing two and have one other game left—at Harvard Monday night.

Columbia kept alive its slim hopes for a share of the crown by trouncing Cornell 86-41, last night. The Lions, with an 8-3 record, visit Princeton Monday night in their finale.

Penn edged Cornell, 50-49, at Ithaca in their first meeting but should have little trouble with the Big Red this time unless the Cornell club shows a reversal of form from last night.

The league champion qualifies automatically for the NCAA regional tournament at Chicago starting Friday.

Upsets Feature Play In Court Tourney

Utica, March 7 (AP)—Upsets have put Brooklyn and Delhi into today's semi-finals of the seventh annual State Institute Basketball Tournament.

Brooklyn thrashed Binghamton, 83-63, and Delhi whipped Buffalo, 67-57, yesterday in second-round play. In other games, Morrisville dumped Cobleskill, 82-50, and Alfred drubbed Canton, 72-52.

In the first round, Cobleskill had eliminated Farmingdale Aggies, last year's champion. Ten teams were entered.

Today's pairings: Alfred vs. Delhi and Morrisville vs. Brooklyn. The final will be held tonight.

Coach Resigns
Newton, Mass., March 7 (AP)—The resignation of Albert "General" McClellan, Boston College basketball coach since 1945, was announced last night by Graduate Manager of Athletics John P. Curley.

New Paltz Downs Plattsburg In Return Contest, 66 to 58

New Paltz State Teachers College returned to the victory side of the ledger Friday night by scoring a 66 to 58 victory over Plattsburg at the college gym.

Plattsburg had beaten the Ulster county collegians in a previous contest.

Sparked by Willie Donoghue who hit for 18 points, the Paltzers jumped out in front by 14-12 at the first quarter and led by 31 to 19 at halftime.

Dick King, center for New Paltz, followed Donoghue in the scoring column with 15 points while John Wulff accounted for 14 markers.

One of the big reasons for the New Paltz triumph was the exceptional defensive play of Bob Schumann and King. The two backcourt stars held Jim Sears to two points. Sears scored 30 against New Paltz in the first meeting of the two clubs.

Doug Schme, center for Plattsburg, was the individual high scorer of the fray with 34 points. He clicked for 13 fields and added eight from the foul line.

New Paltz will meet Genesee next Friday at 8 p. m. at the college court and will close the season with a game against the Alumni Saturday at 8 p. m.

NIT Play On Tonight

New York, March 7 (AP)—The University of Tulsa, figured as the team least likely to succeed, opens the 16th Annual National Invitation Basketball Tournament tonight against Duquesne.

Louisville faces Georgetown (DC) in the second game of the tripleheader with St. Louis and St. John's of Brooklyn, both former NIT champions, clashing in the nightcap.

"I notice the folks around here figure we're about the last ones you'd pick out of this 12 team field and I guess that's probably true," admitted Tulsa Coach Clarence Iba. "I've never seen Duquesne play, but from what I've read they must have a very good club."

In Garden Debut
The game, starting at 6 p. m. (EST), will mark Tulsa's first peep inside Madison Square Garden and its New York debut.

The Golden Hurricane won 11 of its first 13 games and is the only team to beat Louisiana State this season. But times have been tough since last January when center John Dille graduated and the club has lost five of its last nine contests.

Louisville, conqueror of Seton Hall early this week, rates as a two-point favorite over Georgetown and St. Louis, which scored 98 points against New York University in its only other Garden appearance this season, is figured two points better than St. John's.

Seton Hall, which won 27 in a row before bowing to Dayton and Louisville this week, is seeded No. 1 in the tournament. La Salle, last year's NIT champion and currently ranked No. 2 in the country in the Associated Press poll, is seeded second, followed by Western Kentucky and Manhattan. The four seeded teams drew first round byes.

The field wasn't officially filled until last night when Wyoming clinched the Skyline Conference and the NCAA bid that went with it.

Two of tonight's winners will see action in quarterfinal games on Monday. The Georgetown-Louisville survivor will go against Manhattan and St. John's-St. Louis victor will tangle with La Salle.

The other two quarterfinals will be played Tuesday and will match Western Kentucky against Duquesne or Tulsa and Seton Hall against Niagara or Brigham Young.

The semifinals will be played Thursday and the final a week from tonight.

Skip Brodhead Sparks Locals With 18 Points; Monties Next

Kingston High School advanced to the semi-finals of the fifth annual intersectional basketball tournament with a convincing 80 to 64 victory over Nott Terrace High School of Schenectady Friday night before a fair-sized crowd at municipal auditorium.

While the Maroons were registering their decisive victory, Mont Pleasant, to the surprise of no one, battered Amsterdam High School at Convention Hall in Saratoga for its 18th straight victory of the campaign. The Monties won handily by 85 to 57.

Middletown High School also advanced to the semi-finals last night at Saratoga by scoring a close 52 to 50 victory over Albany High School.

NFA Here Tonight
The second game of the quarter-finals of the intersectionals will be played at municipal auditorium tonight when Newburgh Free Academy goes against Troy High School. NFA enters the game as the decided favorite. Game time is 8 p. m. A prelim is slated for 6:30 p. m.

As a result of last night's opening action, Kingston will meet Mont Pleasant next Tuesday night at Convention Hall in Saratoga while Middletown will meet the City invaders with their 17th straight victory of the campaign. The Monties won handily by 85 to 57.

Graham Wins 100th In Giardello Bout

New York, March 7 (AP)—"Now I guess they'll believe I won the other two fights," said jubilant Billy Graham today as he celebrated his 100th pro victory and his first triumph over Joey Giardello.

This one—scored over 12 rounds in Madison Square Garden last night—was by unanimous decision. It brought to a close a controversial three-bout series which provoked more disputes than most heavyweight title fights.

It was the first unanimous verdict in the series—Giardello won the other two by split decision—and it was the first time three officials had come up with the same winner for a Garden main event in five weeks.

Biggest Gate in Year
There was hardly a dissent from the pro-Graham crowd of 8,638 which paid $30,649 (biggest Garden fight crowd and gate in a year) when the officials' cards were announced. The votes, all for Graham, were: Referee Ruby Goldstein 6-3-3; Judge Arthur Aidala, 8-3-1 and Judge Bert Grant, 7-4-1. The AP scorecard had Graham ahead, 6-4-2. Nine of ten boxing writers polled at the ringside scored for Graham.

"That was the last one with Giardello," said Graham's manager, Irving Cohen. "We proved our point. Now it'll be either Art Aragon in Los Angeles in April or the winner of the Paddy Young-Ernie Durando fight (scheduled for March 27) if we can get him."

Question Youths, Old Man in Series of Rapes

New York, March 7 (AP)—A group of youths from the South Bronx and a 75-year-old man were questioned today by detectives in connection with a series of rapes involving two 15-year-old high school girls from the Bronx.

Bronx Assistant District Attorney Wilfred Waltemade said the girls, cousins, had been raped by two youths several months ago and had since been "forced to submit to sexual acts with various men under threats of exposure and physical violence." The assistant district attorney said fear that their parents would learn of the assault led them to submit to "an as yet unknown number of men" since that time.

Waltemade said that about a dozen youths, whose ages range from 16 to 20, and the man had been questioned. He said that questioning would continue and it was likely that "about 20" men may be involved before the investigation is completed.

Police said the 75-year-old man was alleged to have allowed some of the youths to use premises of which he is a janitor for the later attacks.

Waltemade said the incident was revealed last night after two patrolmen took one of the girls and two youths into custody while investigating "suspicious actions" in an automobile.

Kept Close . . .

Malenkov, Beria, Molotov, Voroshilov, N. S. Krushchev, Bulganin, Kaganovich, Mikoyan, Saburov, and M. G. Perukhin, chief of the chemical industry, the Old Presidium elected at the big Communist party congress last October included 25 members.

Alternate Members
Three members of the former Presidium—Shvernik, P. K. Ponomarenko, a former member of the party secretariat, and Leonid G. Melnikov, secretary of the Ukrainian party, were named alternate members of the Presidium.

Other presidium members, named in October but not included in the new listing, were Stalin, V. M. Adrianov, Leningrad party secretary; A. V. Aristov of the Chelabinsk party committee; S. P. Ignatiev of the Moscow committee; D. S. Korotchkov from the Ukraine organization; Kuznetsov; Otto Kuusinen, chairman of the Presidium of the Karelo-Finnish Republic; Malishev, the new minister of transport; Nikolai A. Mikhaliov, first secretary of the Union Communists League; D. I. Tshenokov, high ranking party philosopher; M. A. Suslov, a secretary of the party's Central Committee, and Matvei Shkiryatov, deputy chairman of the former control commission.

Made for Progress
The Communist party newspaper Pravda said in an editorial the changes were "directed toward preventing any kind of interruption in leading activities of state and party organs."

To aid the 53-year-old Bulganin at the Armed Forces Ministry, the government named Marshal Georgi Zhukov, Russia's first commander in occupied Germany, as one of two deputies. The other subordinate post went to Vassilevsky, the former minister.

In his first order of the day, Bulganin pledged himself to strengthen the Red Army's fighting might. He declared the army will keep "vigilant guard over the USSR state's interests."

The foreign ministry also promised to "struggle for further strengthening the international authority of the peace-loving Soviet state."

The statement, issued as Molotov took over, said Soviet diplomats will aim at "consolidating and developing fraternal friendship" with other Communist nations, "developing international collaboration and business-like relations with all countries" and furthering "peace throughout the world."

Move Seen . . .
showed there is a struggle for power involving Malenkov, Molotov and Beria.

Can't Afford Mistake
They said Malenkov, while apparently holding the inside spot, would have to work cautiously and could not afford to make one mistake or he would risk elimination by a combination of the forces of the other two.

It was reported last night there might be a meeting of the Security Council next week to consider the question of a successor to Secretary-General Trygve Lie. The British are known to be anxious for some action at this session of the Assembly and are pushing the name of Lester B. Pearson, Canadian foreign secretary and president of the Assembly.

Indonesian delegate L. N. Palar suggested yesterday that President Eisenhower and Malenkov get together in an attempt to ease world tensions, as a first step toward ending the Korean war. In a speech to the 60-nation Political Committee—now debating the Korean truce impasse—Palar urged his fellow delegates to consider seriously recommending that the Assembly formally ask for such a Big-Two conference.

Red Cross Names

County Goal $46,500

The quota assigned to Ulster county by the National Red Cross is $46,500 of which the city of Kingston has been allocated $20,500 and the county $26,000.

While Kingston will endeavor to complete the majority of calls of Tuesday night in a one-day canvass, the county workers will continue their solicitation throughout March which has been designated as "Red Cross Month."

The Red Cross, a humanitarian organization founded on a volunteer basis to serve those in need, must raise nationally this year $93 millions to carry on its program of relief.

In Ulster county, more than 1,000 volunteers gave time and labor to doing some of the many jobs performed in the name of the Red Cross. Many of them spent hours in training for such tasks as nursing, canteen service, first aid and water safety. There are only three paid workers in the Ulster County Chapter, all others serving on a purely voluntary basis.

Services given by Red Cross need money. Some of the money comes from the volunteers. The rest comes from Red Cross members who help only with their contributions of money.

$18,627 Spent for Floods
The Red Cross is "people helping people." Locally many people have been given assistance through the Ulster County Chapter. Locally, the Red Cross spent for flood disaster work a total of $18,627.05 during the past three years.

In 1950 relief was granted to the sum of $3,603.99; in 1951 $13,052.29; and in 1952 $1,970.77.

This aid was given for rehabilitation of families who were in need following the flooding of the Esopus creek valley. This disaster assistance was given as a grant, never as a loan.

Vets, Families Helped
In the past fiscal year varied services were given to 800 members of the armed forces, veterans and families of both. These services included reporting and communication service, assistance with applications for government benefits, counseling in personal and family problems, referral to other community sources of help and financial assistance.

There was collected 554 pints of blood for the armed forces in four visits of the Red Cross Bloodmobile.

Red Cross trained 67 in home nursing; 207 in first aid and 337 in life saving and water safety. Eighteen nurses aides were trained to serve in local hospitals.

Passenger in Stolen Car Held by Yonkers Police

New York, March 7 (AP)—William Lichenski, 23, of 47 Elinor Place, Yonkers, a passenger in a stolen car recovered after a chase in the North Bronx Thursday night, was held in $500 bail for hearing March 10 when arraigned yesterday on a grand larceny charge in Bronx Magistrate's Court.

Lichenski was arrested near 184th street and Marion avenue after the stolen car, said to have been driven by John E. De Trafford, 23, of 308 Heath avenue, the Bronx, crashed into a power-line pole.

De Trafford was wounded by a police bullet, which entered his neck and shattered his jaw, as he attempted to run from the crash scene.

Police said he later told them he stole the car and that Lichenski was only a passenger.

Malenkov . . .

tiously to consolidate his position with the Soviet army, which would represent the greatest potential danger, and at the same time the greatest support, to his regime.

He installed a Communist who is no soldier at all but a financial wizard with a marshal's baton—N. A. Bulganin—as his minister of war.

Under Bulganin he brought in two deputies who not only are war heroes, but who are perhaps the best soldiers the Soviet Union has—Georgi Zhukov and A. V. Vassilevsky.

Would End Confusion
Malenkov has taken his most important ministries—those concerned with electric power, building and others connected with heavy industry—and placed at their heads men who know their jobs. The number of ministries has been cut down considerably by the mergers in what looks like an effort to end the confusion in the Soviet bureaucracy.

Malenkov proved himself a strong and capable business organizer during and after World War 2 when he accomplished monumental jobs of reconstruction and rehabilitation in the wake of the Nazi destruction. Not only had he the youth and energy needed for the job, but he established himself as a man who would let nothing or nobody stand in the way of his successes.

To Apply Principle Again
He is about to apply that principle to the Soviet economy once again.

For the Soviet people, it means their longing for consumer goods—refrigerators, radios, automobiles and like—will remain unsatisfied until Malenkov is assured of his base. He will continue to tell them they are "building the foundations for communism," and that communism cannot come to pass without first building the means—the heavy industry which would form the foundation.

Malenkov's government is more centralized and more autocratic even than Stalin's.

Malenkov has a long way to go before he is over the dangerous humps. He does not have the broad popular support in Great Russia that Stalin had. In fact, he is largely unknown at home. There will be forces at work inside and outside the government which would be happy to throw him out. He is aware of this.

Take Side of Police
New York, March 7 (AP)—A Kings county (Brooklyn) grand jury says it found "no credible evidence" to back up brutality complaints against two Brooklyn policemen. The panel reported its findings yesterday after a week's study of a case concerning Patrolmen Morris Lazarus and Gabriel Dillon. Salvatore Pace, 22, a chauffeur, accused the two officers of beating him up while taking him in for questioning about a disturbance in a bar. The jury yesterday also warned against "hasty conclusions" whenever any charges are made against policemen. There have been a number of such complaints in the past few weeks.

Russians Prepare

The announcement did not say where the pantheon would be located, but probably it also will be in Red Square.

General Shut-Down

The miles-long queue of mourners was the chief sign of activity in the black-draped city. All theatres, movie houses and other places of entertainment were shut down.

Solemn music—Chopin's Funeral March and sombre works of Tchaikovsky, Beethoven, Schubert and Schumann—swelled from the Moscow radio. Trucks parked bumper to bumper blocked off entrances to most of the city's central streets. Near the Hall of Columns were blockades of soldiers.

A huge portrait of Stalin, in marshal's uniform and edged in black, hung above the main doors to the Hall of Columns. It was decked with a bough of evergreen to symbolize that his memory would live.

Beneath it, two by two—men, women and children—the endless throng filed slowly and soberly past the bier.

"The dear features of the face, which death had not altered, were familiar to the whole world," said a description of the lying-in-state, broadcast by Tass, the Soviet news agency.

In the vast hall, which features 28 white Corinthian style columns and can accommodate at least 2,000 persons, the red-velvet-draped coffin rested on a high platform, surrounded by palms and mountains of flowers and wreaths.

Black crepe covered the hall's glittering decorations. The marble columns were hung with red banners showing the crests of the 16 Soviet Republics.

Stalin's flag-draped coffin had been brought to the hall yesterday afternoon by motor hearse from the Kremlin hospital where he died.

An announcement by Stalin's 10 doctors, broadcast by Moscow radio, said post mortem examination of his body "fully confirmed" their original diagnosis that death was brought on by a brain hemorrhage due to high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries.

With my accident policy, I feel almost no pain.

YOU CAN AT LEAST AVOID THE MONEY WORRY . . .

What if an accident kept you from working for several months? What if it cost you hundreds of dollars for medical, surgical, hospital and nurse expenses?

One person in 10 in America is either injured or killed in an accident every year — many right in their own homes.

We can write you a peach of an accident policy which pays $50 a week for total disability up to 200 weeks. After that, if you are permanently totally disabled, you get $30,000. Also you can get up to $1,000 for medical, surgical, hospital and nurse expenses. And liberal sums for loss of limbs or eyes.

"PUT UP YOUR DUKES"

From reality

If you put up your "dukes," you prepare your fists for a fight. The expression started because the Duke of Wellington had a large fist referred to as a "duke." A large fist was also called a "duke buster" (or nose buster) and finally fists were just called dukes.

Furore Over Plane

Copenhagen, Denmark, March 7 (AP)—Diplomatic complications multiplied today among Denmark, Poland, Britain and NATO over the Russian-built MIG-15 jet fighter landed by a Polish air force lieutenant on the Danish Baltic island of Bornholm Thursday.

While the pilot, claiming to be a political refugee seeking asylum, was being grilled at Copenhagen police headquarters, Polish Minister Dr. Stanislaw Kelles-Krausz delivered his second stiff note to the foreign office demanding that the plane and pilot be handed back to Poland immediately.

However, U. S. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's supreme allied headquarters was reported trying to persuade the Danish government to hold the plane, the first MIG-15 to fall undamaged into western hands.

The embassy said the murdered women were identified as a Mrs. Herbert Strickler, wife of the executive secretary of all Presbyterian missions in India, and Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett of Camden, N. J.
